Directions: Underline the words in the story as you find them, unscramble them and write them in the boxes below. Mary McLeod was the 15th of 17 children born into her family. She was the first free-born child. Her parents expected great things from her. She had a dream to build a school for girls. With determination and the help of many people she built a school. Later it merged with a school for boys and the college was called Bethune-Cookman College. President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed her to positions of power in Washington. She left a rich legacy when she died.
